

The state of Indiana has informed me that you may take action that would curtail the Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. My family considers telemarketing calls intrusive and a violation of our privacy. The Indiana laws have virtually eliminated these intrusions. I wish it were even stronger.

The general public considers telemarketers to be the "scum of the earth". Any additional protection you can give us will be greeted with open arms. Anything done to lessen the protections of our individual state governments will further lower our trust of Washington.
